

A NEW MACHINE

x sensitive innovation in production

Since its birth x Company is very careful and sensitive to innovation and technological development of its production.

This propensity materializes into huge investments , like the acquisition of the " laser center " Way OT- LAS –S which earn here a special mention.

The new machine of Como society , characterized by a very high power and precision , is very suitable for any type of decoration - from cutting to excavation ,and from marking to microperforation.

All this happens with very high definition on large surfaces : extensions up to 1000x1000 mm , produced in a useful single area , or even more through automated devices for the advancement of a single piece .

This interesting and important technological innovation allows x ® to offer a every more varied and comprehensive range of solutions and answers to its customers, a range of proposals with no equal one on the international markets .

Indeed Way –S flexibility allows you to make real and effective all the creative and productive needs in the most advanced and current forms; in other words, in the most fashionable styles .

The company , known for its production of synthetic stones and studs for clothing , take a further step in an ongoing process of continual technological innovation that has already yielded significant results and that will further meet and satisfy its costumers even more. A technological progress that is never a part from creative aspect, in the sign of the best Made in Italy ever .

RESEARCH PROJECT

ERP- The information system in business management

"The information system in business management" is the title of the research project developed in collaboration with the Istituto Universitario Carolina Albasio. An investment in economic research, organization and management, which led Ramponi to define the project ERP (Enterprise Resource Planning) as a Company implementation of resource planner.

PREMIERE VISION

NEW YORK

From January 14 it opened in New York "Premiere Vision", the World's Fair that has conquered the world of textile and accessory a unique and unmissable occasion to which x participate to present the collection spring-summer 2015 with their products and creativity to the American market.